

Popular Education for Social Change Training of Trainers Workshop for Women

Sponsored by WILD (the Women's Institute for Leadership Development)

February 9, 2019

9:30am - 4:00pm

WHAT:

A Popular Education workshop to examine the theory and techniques of education for social change. We'll review ideas about how adults learn, present tools for effective adult education, and explore applying these to the goal of social change.

We are offering two levels:

INTRODUCTION TO POPULAR EDUCATION

For women who have never taught at WILD or taken Popular Education training before, this training will engage participants in both the theory and practice of learner-centered, experience-based, participatory education for action. Participants will also explore facilitation challenges.

ADVANCED TRAINING OF TRAINERS

For women who have taught at WILD or have experience with training and participated in basic Popular Education training, this training will give participants the opportunity to examine how workshops are designed, practice designing and teaching a learning task and explore facilitation skills.

WHO:

- For women who have taught workshops before and want the opportunity to engage with the challenge of practicing popular education in union or community settings
- For women who are new to teaching, but want to learn about popular education as a theory and practice of adult education.
- For English speakers

WHERE:

Offices of SEIU Local 509
293 Boston Post Rd W, Marlborough, MA 01752

COST: $25 for breakfast, lunch and all materials (FREE to WILD women volunteers and facilitators)

RSVP/FOR MORE INFORMATION:

Contact Elizabeth Pellerito at 978-934-3137 or Elizabeth_Pellerito@uml.edu

Please register online: Register Now!

For assistance with transportation, contact Joanie Parker, WILD Organizing Director, at 617-328-1696 or jparker@wildlabor.org